Fire Hazards Should Be Cleared During Spring Clean-Up Campaign

GOOD SEED IS MAIN FACTOR FOR FINE LAWN

It is not too early for you to be thinking now about renovating your old lawn or seeding down the new young grass a chance to establish itself before warm weather comes. Here are some helpful hints.

Renovating the old lawn: rake thoroughly, using a steel rake to remove all dead matter from the surface, so that the seed will have a proper seed bed in which to grow. Then, a top dressing of good loam or peat moss and a standard lawn fertilizer applied at the rate of 2 lbs. per 100 square feet is also beneficial at this time. The quality of seed required for renovating depends largely on the condition of the lawn. A young grass seed which will be ample for the average small lawn.

Seeding the new lawn: prepare the seed bed by raking up the clods, removing by raking, the weeds, roots and other debris, then roll, rake and tread the ground until the surface becomes quite firm, fine and fine, and when walked upon will hardly show the imprint of a shoe.

Use the seed as evenly as possible, using 1 lb. to 200 square feet, depending on the seed. For the work, otherwise much of the seed may be blown away and lost, or should the soil be too wet, it will stick to the operator's shoes, and in this way the level surface may be seriously disturbed. Cover the seed to a depth not exceeding one-quarter of an inch. The most simple way to do this is to light, to rake the surface in two directions. The ground should then be rolled and cross-rolled with a light roller.

Lawn grass seed: Whether renovating old, or seeding new lawns it is of the utmost importance to use grasses which have been tested and selected in laboratories and trial grounds of reputable seed houses from formulae that ensure moisture, velocity, lawn, resistant to drought and hard wear and retaining their green color and natural brightness throughout the season.

New South Wales To Build 60 Ships

LONDON, May 3.—(AP)—The British Broadcasting Corporation reported yesterday that New South Wales will start construction shortly by the first of 60 merchant ships of standard type ordered by the government. It is expected Queensland and Victoria will receive the bulk of the contracts.

Jail Sentence

KELOWNA, B.C., May 3.—(AP)—Leonard Schaff, 37-year-old German-born resident of Canada since 1930, was sentenced today to a year in Okalla prison farm by Magistrate T. P. McWilliams in police court here for neglecting statements likely to be prejudicial to the efficient prosecution of the war.

The spring clean-up is a good time for citizens to clear their homes, garages and yards of rubbish of an inflammable nature and to see that no fire hazards are created or permitted to exist. Fire Chief James Macgregor advised Saturday.

The chief revealed that firemen would again this summer conduct an examination of city business places and homes in order to aid citizens in ridding their homes of fire menaces.

Chimneys, stoves and furnace pipes should be cleaned and householders should take precautions to see that birds such as sparrows do not build nests in chimneys or vents.

Accumulations of boxes and papers should be cleared from attics and basements and particular care should be taken to see that stairways are kept free from all materials such as rags or papers which might create a fire hazard.

Electric wiring and appliances should be checked for bare spots which might create a fire hazard. Stoves should be placed close to walls and protection should be provided beneath them.

Fire department officials will be glad to give individuals for anything to any person in need of information. "Remember! Most fires are the result of somebody's carelessness," said the fire chief.

USE TESTED POTATO SEED URGED HERE

Suggestions that citizens planting their own garden use only government tested and certified seed—especially for potatoes—was made by J. Cardy, president of the Edmonton Horticultural Society, in an address to the society.

"Crops from unregistered seed will yield only one-third as much as crops from registered potato seed," said Mr. Cardy.

He reported that nearly 4,000 vacant lots in the city have been leased to private individuals for gardening purposes. This is a 20 per cent increase over last year. Land may be leased from the city on payment of a nominal fee of $1. Increased interest in gardening was probably due to the high price of potatoes, last season and the higher cost of living due to the war, he said.

VICHY, France, May 3.—(AP)—A dispatch from Beirut, Lebanon, said yesterday that five transports of British troops, with anti-aircraft guns and munitions, which landed at Haifa, Palestine, this week were ordered to leave the seaport and sail for Basra in Iraq.

"The report was without confirmation from British quarters," the dispatch said. The troops were said to have sailed Friday.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS FIND THAT GAS IS ADVANTAGE

The Camp Fire Girls of America have explored the mysteries of gas this year as part of a nation-wide investigation of how a city keeps house through its gas.

In attacking the gas problem the youngsters sought to answer such questions as: Where does the gas come from? How is it distributed? What is it? Who controls it? How long will the supply last? Further investigation revealed many ways in which gas makes life safer and more comfortable for each girl. Dangers in the unwise use of gas were carefully noted by the girls, who also inquired about special devices for such emergencies as floods and fires.

After learning how to read a gas meter, the girls felt that every housewife should master this technique.

The Sherman group visited the gas company and good for pictures while they learned to use the different parts of the gas meter. At the end of a day's work the girls wrote with pride:

"Gas makes life safer and more pleasant for us by eliminating all smoke from the air and from our buildings, making our cities much cleaner."

Now that we have learned more about our gas we think of it, not just as something we naturally have, but as something we should always be proud of and use to the best advantage of everyone."

Half of our conversation is made up of 41 common words.

Dahlias Will Provide Profusion Of Garden Color Through Season

Dahlias play an important part in our gardens. Not only are they the first to bloom in the spring, but a proper selection will give a succession of color as the season progresses.

Few flowers offer us such variety in form and coloring as dahlias. Truly growing varieties are used to good effect at the rear of the herbaceous border while the dwarf sorts are excellent for bedding purposes. Both types make grand cut flowers. Dahlias and Calliopsis varieties grown from seed will produce magnificent sturdy flowers the first season.

They should have exposure to full sun. Dahlias grow best in a sandy loam with a gravelly subsoil and require a large amount of humus in the soil. Do not try to grow dahlias in a heavy clay soil. Phosphorus and potash are needed for good blooms.

Dahlias of the large type require at least three feet between plants while the dwarf types grow well if spaced 18 to 12 inches apart. Allow only one stalk from a tuber to develop for the finest blooms. Shallow cultivation and plenty of water during the growing season is most necessary. In early August give each plant a handful of bonemeal (about 1/2 of a 3-10-6 commercial fertilizer) spread it in a broad ring about each plant. Cultivate and thoroughly soak into the ground, then give a much of partially decayed leaves and cultivate no more.

Each year, lightening kills 2000 plants in the United States, with the annual average being nine men to each woman.

BLOCKS NEED FIRE ESCAPES MARSHAL SAYS

Warning to apartment owners that they will be prosecuted unless they take immediate steps to comply with fire regulations requiring that fire escapes be constructed on all apartment buildings of 24 or more stories is issued by Fire Marshal Jack Booth.

Firmers are carrying out an inspection at the present time and apartment owners who have not yet complied with the regulations are requested to contact the fire marshal immediately for details. They will be given 30 days to do the work. More than 80 apartments underwent alterations last fall in order to comply with the rules.

Arbor Day

Monday will be Arbor Day. Everyone who has the use of a bit of ground upon which he lives should make a flower bed, or set out a few shrubs or a tree or two. There is no better way to make the home surroundings cheerful and the place attractive. And the cost can be held down to a trifle if necessary.

It is at present a terrible and terrifying world that we are living in. Even in Edmonton, so far from the conflict, life has its daily burden of worry and anxiety and gloom. Some brightly colored flowers, a patch of green grass, a pretty bush or a shrubby tree—these are pleasant things to have, and they are a source of peace and calm for the troubled spirit.

Oil The Objective

Events in Iraq disclose the real purpose of Hitler's drive through the Balkans. He didn't undertake that costly enterprise just to enable Benito to get his hands on the Fuchrer wants the Iraq oil supplies, because he needs them, and has opened his campaign there in the traditional way.

A month ago the regularly constituted government of Iraq was overthrown by rebels, whose chief was said to have been appointed to Germany, and several vessels were captured. He did not need against the opposing forces. The correct sequence no doubt is that he got the help first, in the shape of a fifth column campaign, coupled with the German air, the clear signal to come in and to attack. This was the general pattern of Axis conquests in Europe, through the capture of the local oil supplies, was not successful in Iraq.

Fortunately British troops have arrived on the scene while the Fuchrer's legions are still in Europe. It is to be hoped in sufficient force to carry through the oil policy. Mr. Eden said that he would be dealing with this gang of treaty-breakers.

The inference is clear that the R.A.F. destruction of a German oil tanker in the Mediterranean has created a situation in which the oil supply is causing concern, despite the fact that the British Empire is not being drawn from Rumania. The cost and risk of a large scale campaign in so far distant a theatre as Iraq would hardly be undertaken in any other circumstances.

We Just Can't Afford It

Only "with the greatest reluctance," Mr. Haley said in his budget speech, had the decision been reached that it will not be possible to remove the financial restrictions which prevent Canada from joining the United States on holiday. To do so would throw the exchange still further out of balance, and contribute to the puzzle of the puzzling problem of where and how to find perhaps an additional $80,000,000 for the United States.

Or, putting it another way, holiday sendings of Canadian tourists in the United States would cut down by the sum of the amount of machine tools and electrical equipment Canada can buy there. The price thus lay behind the oil-cut war effort and pleasure trip abroad.

That being the case, there will be unanimous and united opposition to any Canadian of the decision to not remove the restrictions and let who would go across the border and diapale the national buying power there.

It is rather doubtful that fewer United States tourists will come to Canada because Canada cannot afford to accept the visits. The necessity of conserving United States funds in Canada must be understood by our neighbors. The course adopted is precisely the one the government of any country would be expected to take in parallel circumstances.

The long and short of it is that, much to their regret, Canadians cannot afford at this juncture to spend money abroad for amusement or recreation.

More Supply Ships

President Roosevelt has set machinery in motion to mobilize 2,000,000 tons of United States merchant shipping, in order to make good the undertaking that the "good" ships will be sent to Britain and other allied countries assailed by the aggressor states. The plan is said that these ships are to be put into the service at the rate of 200,000 tons per month, vessels so diverted to be replaced by new ones under the building program.

The latest figures now show that Axis air, surface and under-water raiders have destroyed something more than 5,000,000 tons of British, Allied and neutral shipping in a period of 20 months; an average rate of about 250,000 tons per month. It is to be expected that this rate will continue to exceed. Even so, this great fleet of United States carriers will heavily offset the losses.

It will be supplemented by the fact that the 21 American republics are in course of taking over, many of which are expected to be chartered and sent to Britain. In addition, the Greek mercantile fleet, totaling a million tons more, is now devoted exclusively to carrying supplies to Britain and the war zone in the Mediterranean.

These fresh accretions of carriers will substantially lessen the danger of Britain being attacked by lack of food or lack of munitions. And meanwhile, in British waters in Canadian waters, in the harbors, yards, and in some other parts of the world, construction is being pushed to the limit.

From The News

By Harold L. Weir

The appointment of Lord Beaverbrook as cabinet minister in general unilateral charge of all war production has been met with satisfaction throughout the Empire.

There is a disposition to believe that Beaverbrook's new post will make him not only the most powerful man in the government but of deputy prime minister and may forecast his inheritance of the premiership should any untoward circumstance—which God forbid—cause Winston Churchill to relinquish office.

The latter is pure speculation, of course, but there appears to be no doubt that his appointment is calculated to leave Mr. Churchill completely free of the duties of administration, and to enable him to devote all his energies and fine qualities of mind to the larger field of war strategy.

It is impossible to overestimate the extent to which Mr. Churchill's value to the Empire will be enhanced by this new freedom.

The advantage gained is not purely technical one. It is not merely a matter of taking away certain of his duties so that he can assume other duties.

The gain to the Empire consists in transforming Mr. Churchill from the fountainhead of British law into the fountainhead of imperial strategy.

Any clever and honest man of training and experience can make good laws and administer departments of government efficiently.

But only a man of the moral stature of Mr. Churchill, and possessing his unique qualities of heart and mind and of the symbol of the British genius and awaken the best efforts of the peoples of the Empire.

What is the function of the Empire as an inspiration? Mr. Churchill will now be free to give it to us in full measure.

The function of inspiration in government has never been fully appreciated by the general public.

We have received an understanding of inspiration in education. Indeed, it occasionally happens that that university is the best university which teaches least and inspires most.

We must have been reluctant to accept that principle. It is not only in the classroom that we are to be inspired. We must have a public life in which we are capable of nothing more than technical perfection in the particular departments they are given to administer.

We forget that the public, above everything else, desires moral leadership in public life is men who above everything else are a composite likeness of the people.

In the days of Grand Monarchy, the king was the state. The king of England called himself "God's lieutenant on earth." The king of France called himself "the most Christian king."

Democracy demands no less personalization. The government is the people. The leader is a kind of figure towards whom all conditions and conditions of men can look and say "There go I."

It is Mr. Churchill's secret of greatness. It is his gift of greater inspiration, exercise this potent faculty that Lord Beaverbrook is being moved to a higher post.

It is the best arrangement, represents an advantage as far as Mr. Churchill is concerned, it represents an equal advantage as far as Lord Beaverbrook is concerned.

Beaverbrook, too, has qualities of inspiration. It was not as a technician, but as a driving force (for rather, leading force) that he built his newspaper, gave it its present splendour of public affairs.

Side Glances

By Galbraith

"I probably would have amounted to something if I had gone to college and studied—but somehow I could never spare the time."

Chapter 11. Common belief in certain principles, one common passion for freedom.

I've talked with a lot of army men, officers and privates, here and in other camps in the Southwest about Lindbergh. Funny, I find many industrialists and a great many women who are Lindbergh enthusiasts. Not yet an army man, their viewpoint was about summed up in words of one officer. Even he thought that he was, about as good an expression to his thoughts, not his, but it's no time for people not to feel it. No time for defeatism."

Yet, in these pondering days, I've seen a picture of Lindbergh, a very old, very old, but his name in the papers is still a reminder of how new the country is.

Yes, in Dallas, I stopped between the clouds and the ground, in the final spots for women's suffrage. I saw a picture of Lindbergh, a very old, very old, but his name in the papers is still a reminder of how new the country is.

Conducted by E. M. B.

JOURNEY TO THE WORLDS END By H. M. B. Doublet.
This young Danish author could write with charm of a thing and a translator who apparently has not married the original in his head. His preparations for the journey from "World's End" make delightful reading because of the humor and the skill with which they are described.

He went in Magallanes in Patagonia on a ship loaded with dynamite, and here was fortunate in meeting the apostle of the missionary who took him on his twenty-five-foot boat through the channels of the sub-antarctic archipelago.

He has underwritten his adventures generally, describing even his humorous trip around Cape Horn with such caution that modesty glows narrative. He has excellently portrayed the heroic and brutal pioneers of the islands, the Gold Rush Puggs who made the islands, the canals, the fanatic missionaries, the evil men of the mountains and the lawless men of the valleys, when being craftily starting with tales of the islands.

Canada's Memory Ship

By Norman Macintosh in Canada's Weekly (London)

Spring sunshine streaming through the stained glass windows of the Parish Church in London on a Sunday morning, softly tinted the folds of the Alken White Ensign which veiled upon an eastern wall the memorial tablet to the fallen for the captain, officers and men of H.M.S. Forfar who gave their lives in Britain's fight for world peace.

Citizens of Forfar, friends and relatives of the dead, filled the church, which in 1900, at the quarter past 11 the provost, magistrate and council of the town, the captain, officers and men of H.M.S. Forfar who gave their lives in Britain's fight for world peace.

Attente et Espoir

Extrait du journal "France"

Attente et espoir. Le mot est simple, mais il est profond. Il exprime le sentiment de l'attente, de l'attente d'un avenir meilleur, d'un avenir meilleur. C'est un sentiment qui est universel, qui est commun à tous les hommes. C'est un sentiment qui est la source de toute espérance, de toute foi.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELLERD

To give a child something to wear is a task that is not only a joy but a responsibility. The child's wardrobe should be a reflection of the child's personality and the family's style. It should be practical, comfortable, and beautiful. The child's clothes should be a source of pride and joy for both the child and the parent.

Points For Parents

By EDITH THOMAS WALLACE

Parents should be aware of the importance of setting a good example for their children. Children learn by observing their parents' behavior. Therefore, parents should strive to be honest, kind, and responsible in their own actions.

Helping children make a time budget will save many an argument. Children should learn to manage their time effectively, balancing schoolwork, play, and family time.

VEGEBVILLE
Suggest the power of making a vegetable garden. Mrs. George Egan, of Veggieville, suggests that parents encourage their children to grow vegetables. This not only teaches them about gardening but also provides them with fresh, healthy food.

WINTERBURN
Mrs. W. Pugh and Mrs. Dorothy W. gave interesting talks on home economics. They discussed various topics related to home management, including budgeting, cooking, and sewing.

GIVE EXPLANATION
When a child is misbehaving, it is important for the parent to give a clear explanation of why the behavior is wrong. This helps the child understand the consequences of their actions and learn from their mistakes.

EDMONTON
Mrs. Thomas Taylor was speaker at the meeting of the Women's Institute. She discussed the importance of community involvement and the role of women in society.

MIRNURN
Mrs. J. H. Smith was speaker at the meeting of the Women's Institute. She discussed the importance of family values and the role of women in the home.

No Services In St. Paul's — R.A.F. "Invasion" Of U. S. Begins — They Came Up Smiling After Nazi Raid

A Nazi raider's bomb blasted out this gaping hole in centre of St. Paul's Cathedral, famed London landmark damaged so badly in German air raid that it has been closed to the public.

To every state in the Union will go a little silver Piper Cub sport plane like this one, shown over the lower tip of Manhattan. Marked with the insignia of the Royal Air Force, the 48 planes are "invading" the U. S. on behalf of the R.A.F. Benevolent Fund of the U. S. A.

An impromptu concert is enjoyed in a destroyed area of Belfast, Ireland, after German planes rained bombs on the city and almost the whole of Northern Ireland. Hundreds of homes were shattered and at least 500 lives were lost.

Total production of explosives in Canada this year should approach in quantity the entire output during the First Great War. The entire program calls for an annual output more than double that of any year of the First Great War. One plant, already in full production, will have a greater capacity to produce one important explosive than all Canadian plants had in 1914-15. Of 19 projects in the giant $105,000,000 program administered by the Allied War Supplies Corporation, a government-owned company, ten already are in production and four others will be producing by mid-year. Some 18,000 men are engaged in new plant construction, now about 70 per cent complete. Another 4,000 persons are employed on production, a figure which will increase sharply as new plants begin operations. Some of the plants produce not only the finished explosives and chemicals, but their own raw materials. An important phase of the program is that concerned with the filling of bombs, shells, cartridges, fuses, and primers, so that they can be shipped overseas.

—And Why The Sea Is Boiling Hot, —And Whether Pigs Have Wings

As the Alice in Wonderland Walrus put it, the time has come to talk of many things, including why the sea is boiling hot and whether pigs have wings. Leaving the Battle of the Atlantic for others to discuss, Wendell Willkie turns farmers for a week and investigates the latter possibility on his Rushville, Ind. farm.

Unity's Sister Weds

Unity attended the wedding, RIGHT, in her first public appearance since she returned from Germany more than a year ago with mysterious bullet wounds in her neck.

Looking To Hong Kong's Defences

Air Chief Marshal Brooke-Popham (right in group), Commander-in-Chief of British forces in the Far East, inspects a group of Chinese soldiers at Hong Kong during his tour of inspection of Great Britain's strongholds in South China.

A sea of kneeling faithful unobscured by the genuflections of these Moslems on the birthday of Mohammed. This is a street in Calcutta, but the scene to a lesser extent was duplicated in England and Egypt when Moslems serving in the Indian army forces, observed the Prophet's birthday. Notice the beggars in the foreground waiting with their alms bowls for the end of the service when the streaming Moslem crowds will show generosity.

ONE FOR THE MONEY

By Louise Holmes

 "Yeah," Spate put on a "Hee-hee" look. "You're right here in New York, and I'll be right here in the same old bed, mark my words."
 Mrs. Spate's maid disappeared completely as she saw Kennedy. Kennedy put down his salad fork. He turned back the picture of a laughing demon. His head was tilted back, his eyes were wide open.

NO INHIBITIONS
 Julie looked at her plate to hide the fact she was alone. Kennedy seemed to be a little more than a little bit of a troublemaker. She seemed to be a little more than a little bit of a troublemaker. She seemed to be a little more than a little bit of a troublemaker.

"Oh, they were a mess that afternoon," she went on. "I was for the whole town. The boys used to come in and see me. I was on the simple side. If you know what I mean, they used to put me up to stunts like throwing stones at church windows and turning in a letter-carrying thing like that."

Julie looked at her plate to hide the fact she was alone. Kennedy seemed to be a little more than a little bit of a troublemaker. She seemed to be a little more than a little bit of a troublemaker. She seemed to be a little more than a little bit of a troublemaker.

"I'll say she was," Spate bubbled. "I'll say she was," Spate bubbled. "I'll say she was," Spate bubbled. "I'll say she was," Spate bubbled. "I'll say she was," Spate bubbled.

FROZEN SILENCE
 Afterward Julie urged her friend to spend the night at Spateville. Spate declined with an air. "Gee, I can't do that," she said. "I can't do that," she said. "I can't do that," she said.

With the help of two male Julia. The tale of Spate had been told by a young girl and even Annie made no effort to hide her disapproval of Julie. This matter little Julia heard even while a sense of guilt nagged her.

CHAPTER THIRTY-SIX
 There was no trouble at Spateville that night, no side talk. Complaining of a headache, she laughed too much. Julie, excited herself in order that her antecedents should be discussed freely.

Before reaching the top of the stairs she knew the discussion to have started once more. She had heard herself and continued her story to the face of Kennedy Spate.
